Hi! My name is Niklas Andersson and I am a Bangkok-Stockholm-based software developer with previous work experience in retail, logistics and project management. I have an educational background in both software development and business.

In recent years, I embarked on an entrepreneurial journey and built an online business platform connecting organic farmers with end-customers and enabling a harvest-to-order concept. I learnt a lot and it led me to my new passion, web development. After almost three years, I decided to close down the platform and I am now looking for opportunities where I can utilise my previous experiences and various skillsets.
